Morchurch Bishop

Nestled between Dartmoor and Exmoor, and nearly equidistant both the north and south coasts and surrounded by unspoiled, rolling farmland.

Boasting over 60 footpaths and bridleways, Morchurch Bishop has one of the highest concentrations of public footpaths of any parish in Devon, making it a key midpoint along the Two Moors Way trail.

Morchurch Bishop has a rich architectural history, capturing the economic and social evolution since mediaeval times. The village was originally called 'Morchet' from the Celtic words meaning 'great wood' or 'forest' reflecting its ancient roots, and the suffix 'Bishop' was added in reference to the Bishop of Exeter, who owned the land in 1086.

This thriving community offers a variety of social clubs and amenities, including a shop and café, a pub, a primary school, a doctor's surgery, and a parish church. The nearby market town of Crediton provides a wider range of facilities and is easily accessible via the A377 or by regular train service. Morchurch Road, less than three miles away, on the Exeter to Barnstaple line.

The Cathedral City of Exeter is under 15 miles away.

As well as the usual high street names, there are a wealth of independent shops along the cobbles of Gandy Street and the relaxed vibe of the Quayside. Renowned for its art scene, music and sports, Exeter plays host to a packed calendar of events and festivals throughout the year and is home to a choice of independent Schools and a well-regarded Russell Group University.

The mainline railway at St David's Station provides swift links to London and other major cities and Exeter International airport serves a variety of destinations.
